Rikki Wardyn accepted into Forbes Human Resources Council

Forbes Human Resources Council is an Invitation-Only Community for HR Executives Across All Industries

Omaha, NE 8/11/18 — Rikki Wardyn, Vice President of Human Resources, has been accepted into the Forbes Human Resources Council, an invitation-only community for HR executives across all industries.

Rikki joins other Forbes Human Resources Council members, who are hand-selected, to become part of a curated network of successful peers and get access to a variety of exclusive benefits and resources, including the opportunity to submit thought leadership articles and short tips on industry-related topics for publishing on Forbes.com.

Forbes Councils combines an innovative, high-touch approach to community management perfected by the team behind Young Entrepreneur Council (YEC) with the extensive resources and global reach of Forbes. As a result, Forbes Council members get access to the people, benefits and expertise they need to grow their businesses — and a dedicated member concierge who acts as an extension of their own team, providing personalized one-on-one support.

"I am excited to be invited into the Forbes HR Council to contribute and learn from this HR community. Serving as a Forbes HR Council Member will allow me an opportunity to honor those who have graciously mentored me, by giving back to the business community. This invitation will help further strengthen Banyan's leadership role in delivering solutions to maximize the human touch with the aid of innovative technologies; allowing each employee the ability operate at the full extent of their education, training, and passions." -Rikki Wardyn

Scott Gerber, founder of Forbes Councils, says, "We are honored to welcome Rikki into the community. Our mission with Forbes Councils is to curate successful professionals from every industry, creating a vetted, social capital-driven network that helps every member make an even greater impact on the business world."
